TANGLES OF EVANS NAMED A SALON OF DISTINCTION IN SALON TODAY MAGAZINE'S "SALONS OF THE YEAR" COMPETITION

LINCOLNSHIRE, IL (June 1, 2009) — Tangles of Evans in Evans, Georgia, has been named a salon of distinction in the nationally acclaimed "Salons of the Year" interior design competition sponsored by SALON TODAY, the leading business publication for the professional salon industry.

The salon, owned by Tracy Penny Gambrell and Bob Gambrell, distinguished itself among more than 100 entries received and is featured in the June 2009 issue of SALON TODAY magazine.

"We witnessed quite a diversity in entrants this year as salons and spas across the country focused their design efforts on creating unique environments that catered to their target markets," says Stacey Soble, editor in chief of SALON TODAY. "The 20 winning salons showcase current design trends in the salon and spa industry."

Salons competing in the annual "Salons of the Year" competition were either newly constructed or remodeled salons that opened between January 1, 2008 and December 31, 2008. A grand-prize winner and three runners-up were chosen, and the remaining 16 salons were named "Salons of Distinction."

Salons were judged in six design categories: Use of Color, Lighting, Flooring, Efficient Use of Space, Consistency of Design and Overall Aesthetics. This year's panel of judges included David Wagner, owner of JUUT Salonspas, last year's grand-prize winner; Michele Pelafas, owner of Salon and Spa Interiors in Oak Brook, Illinois; Katerina Soukhopalov, owner of MSK Design Group in New York; Kate Gallagher Cicela, a public relations and marketing specialist with Vi Nelson and Associates in Chicago; and Clodagh, owner of Clodagh Design in New York.

Statistics and images of all 20 winning salons are posted on www.salontoday.com.

SALON TODAY magazine, published by Lincolnshire, Illinois-headquartered Vance Publishing, is the leading business publication written for salon owners and managers. It is a sister publication to MODERN SALON magazine.
